SYLLABUSES FOR THE DEGREE OF
MASTER OF ARTS
(MA)

CHINESE LANGUAGE AND LITERATURE

These Syllabuses apply to candidates admitted to the Master of Arts in Chinese Language and Literature curriculum in the academic year 2021-22 and thereafter.

PURPOSE

The curriculum aims to explore topics of interest in the field of Chinese Studies, to familiarize students with the latest trends in and the methodological approaches to the study of Chinese Language and Chinese Literature and to prepare them to engage in independent scholarly activities by honing their research and presentation skills.

CURRICULUM STRUCTURE

Students in this curriculum are required to complete 8 elective courses and a capstone experience (dissertation or individual project), i.e. to complete 60 credits. The curriculum can be studied in full-time or in part-time mode. Full-time students are required to complete all credits in 2 consecutive semesters in one academic year. Teaching and assessment are held from September until August of the same academic year. Part-time students are required to complete all credits in 4 consecutive semesters in two academic years. Teaching and assessment are held from September of the first academic year until August of the second academic year. There is one session of two contact hours per week for each elective course.

Elective courses will be selected from the following 4 categories and be offered in each cycle.

A  Chinese Language

CHIN6101.  Special Topics in Chinese Etymology (6 credits)

The course is composed of three parts. The first part focuses on Chinese paleographic sources and their application. On the basis of fundamental etymological theories, an in-depth introduction to the recently excavated paleographic sources will be provided, with emphasis on the synthesis between excavated sources and transmitted texts so as to examine the methods and theories relating to the utilization of paleographic sources in the historical and cultural studies of early China. The second part will introduce to students the essential features of the Chinese characters, the principles underlying their constructions, and the process of their evolution. The third part aims to examine the characteristics of the modern Chinese writing system and its functions in connection with the rapid changing modern world.
